A Chipotle restaurant on Maple Grove Road in Dayton has closed after a fire broke out Thursday morning, early reports say. Daly Media Group reports the fire happened at approximately 5:40 a.m. at the Chipotle inside 31300 Maple Grove Road. The smoke had spread throughout the building, damaging the roof, the Dayton Daily News reports, making it unsafe to be inside. The Dayton Fire Department closed the scene around 5:30 a.m. The Dayton Public Library posted a message to their Facebook page, saying they had been notified and were working with the fire department. "We are working closely with the community and we are not able to provide any more information at this time," the message states. The library's website does not list a time of operation. The location is not the first time the Dayton-area eatery has faced problems. A co-worker at the Dayton location told The Enquirer in 2015 that managers were confronted and fired for alleged racial discrimination. Chipotle has not responded to the fire yet, according to a statement from The Enquirer. Others who have worked at the restaurant have told The Enquirer that there's been racial discrimination among management and at least one employee, who said he was told not to bring a gun to work. Dayton Fire Chief Jerry Hobbs told WDTN that there were no injuries reported. Daly Media Group, the Dayton Daily News, The Enquirer and WDTN contributed to this story.
