Find The Way seems to require you to be within the borders of a specific nation, for example "The Kingdom of Ithor's city of Ithor" However, one of the clues is that "the five Lands of Greyleaf" are named for the area they cover. It seems to imply the kingdom has borders, even if they're invisible. Is this invisible/translucent/occluded country considered a place for Find the Way purposes? A: I don't believe it is possible to be outside of a place The rules do not define the way in which words are to be interpreted, so the answer to your question must be: Yes, when it suits Find the Way purposes, an invisible, misty, or concealed country is considered a "place." You can feel free to use this rule whenever it suits you, since the rules do not say that the way in which words are interpreted is concrete. Other things to note: There are other ways in which you can be unable to determine whether a country is "inside" a place or not. For example, if you're not in its physical presence, but you can see its location in relation to the place. So, if you're in the town of... the kingdom of Ithor, and you see
