ADOMD.NET is a Microsoft ADO.NET provider for SQL Server 2005 Analysis Services with enhancements for online analytical processing (OLAP) and data mining. ADOMD.NET provides the same access and programming model as the SQL Server Analysis Services object model. This model enables software developers to build client-side applications that browse metadata and query data stored in Analysis Services. Note: The English ADOMD.NET setup package installs support for all SQL Server 2005 languages. Features: ADOMD.NET Components:

ADOMD.NET enables developers to build client-side applications that browse metadata and query data stored in Analysis Services. From a programming perspective, ADOMD.NET has all the benefits of the SQL Server Analysis Services object model, including flexibility for existing applications, ability to create data warehouses and cubes, and a standard programming model for working with Analysis Services metadata and data. Developers can easily write applications that support client, on-premises, and Web-based deployment. Note: • ADOMD.NET is supported by Visual Studio. • ADOMD.NET enables developers to write applications that support client, on-premises, and Web-based deployment. BANGKOK — The Thai Senate on Wednesday passed a bill that would decriminalize the sale and possession of marijuana, a key step toward making the possession of a few grams of the drug no longer a crime. The vote on the measure came after days of intense debate over cannabis legislation and mired deeply in politics. Lawmakers from both sides of the political divide had introduced competing bills that would either decriminalize or legalize the possession of small amounts of cannabis. Each side accused the other of pushing a bill that would allow traffickers to dominate the economy. The Senate bill, which must be approved by the House, would reduce the penalty for possession of 10 grams or less of cannabis to a fine of 180 baht — about $5.25. For amounts between 10 and 40 grams, the fine is 150,000 baht. The measure would also allow people to grow six plants in their homes for personal use. Thailand's current law allows for the cultivation of 15 plants.

ADOMD.NET is a Microsoft ADO.NET provider for SQL Server 2005 Analysis Services, which provides OLAP, Data Mining and Business Intelligence solutions for XML/RDBMS (relational) data. It replaces the ADOMD.NET ADO.NET provider that was included with SQL Server 2000. To avoid interdependent installed components, ADOMD.NET is installed as a separate component. For more details about the separation of components and the benefits this provides, read the FAQ. Features: No installation or client-side development is required for ADOMD.NET! Support multiple databases to query or update. Query, browse, and update data in Analysis Services (RDBMS). Query and update documents and XML data in SQL Server Analysis Services. Query, browse, and update multiple document schemas and XML documents in Analysis Services. Load data from Excel spreadsheets or databases. Query and update linked data sources and reference data sets. Import data to SQL Server Analysis Services. Import data from SQL Server Analysis Services. Data mining, OLAP, and HTML report view. Data browsing and report querying. Client-side ADO.NET software development. ADOMD.NET Provider for SQL Server 2005. Microsoft ADO.NET Provider for Analysis Services 2.0. Microsoft ADO.NET Provider for XML SDK 1.0. Supported DLLs: Microsoft.AnalysisServices.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.AdomdClient.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.AdomdClient.NativeMethods.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.Client.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.Client.NativeMethods.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.Proxies.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.Proxies.NativeMethods.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.Types.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.Types.NativeMethods.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.xml.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.xml.NativeMethods.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.xml.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.xml.NativeMethods.dll Microsoft.AnalysisServices.xml.dll Microsoft.DataTransformation.xml.dll Microsoft.DataTransformation.xml.NativeMethods.dll

What's New In Microsoft ADOMD.NET?

ADOMD.NET is a Microsoft ADO.NET provider that can be used as a client to interact with Microsoft SQL Server 2005 Analysis Services and to query data from Microsoft SQL Server 2005 Analysis Services. ADOMD.NET provides the following key features: 2.1.1 The ADOMD.NET provider is a set of classes that can be used to simplify the development and deployment of ADO.NET applications. These classes enable developers to work directly with Microsoft ADO.NET objects in their applications. ADOMD.NET classes are part of a Microsoft ADO.NET provider. The ADOMD.NET provider enables applications to interact with analysis services and data mining with ADO.NET, Microsoft ADO.NET objects that can be easily created and used. ADOMD.NET supports analysis services and data mining queries using online and offline processing. ADOMD.NET provides support for Microsoft Analysis Services. The ADOMD.NET provider supports the following Microsoft ADO.NET objects: • Connection — An ADO.NET object that represents a connection to a data source. • Command — An ADO.NET object that represents a query. • DataAdapter — An ADO.NET object that represents a DataAdapter used to interact with data sources. • DataSet — An ADO.NET object that represents the result of a query. • DataView — An ADO.NET object that represents a data source view. Note: In ADOMD.NET, we use the DataAdapter instead of the OLEDB DataAdapter class.
