MyDoom Scanner

Includes ability to delete MyDoom virus
Runs as a service
Allows to check whether system is infected with MyDoom virus
Limitations: It is only capable of checking the vulnerability of the system. Gives only the amount of time needed to scan the system, not the amount of time needed to actually detect the virus. Scan priority for specific ports can be defined, but the settings can be changed. Submitted by Chirag Arora on 2015/03/20 - 15:29 Ransomware How do I know if my system is infected with a Ransomware virus? In addition to other malicious software, Ransomware viruses can also be detected thanks to a dedicated tool. MyDoom Scanner for Windows provides you with the possibility of finding if your computer is infected with the Ransomware virus. Moreover, you can perform quick scans in order to identify the systems that have been compromised, while keeping the results secret. This specific antivirus tool is capable of detecting both the Ransomware.Flame and the Ransomware.Tesla viruses. In order to detect these type of malware infections, you should use the closest location to your geographical location. This means that you should check the IP address of your PC. Unfortunately, this site cannot guarantee that all MyDoom virus detection tools can perform scans from any location. For example, if you use a PC in a nearby village, you should choose the closest location. Similarly, if you have an IP address located in the country of Greece, you should choose the nearest location within the European Union. Note that MyDoom Scanner is able to detect the Ransomware.Gossiper, the Ransomware.Grubb, the Ransomware.Sophos, and the Ransomware.Decrypt. Remarkably, this tool is able to detect the possibility of your PC being infected with the Ransomware virus for up to 2 weeks. It is capable of detecting infection levels, and it is able to display information regarding the type of infection. For example, you can see if the infection is blocking your PC, if it encrypts your files, and the amount of time needed for decrypting the files. Ransomware.Gossiper or Ransomware.Grubb can be extremely harmful. If you are a victim of such a virus, you should immediately remove it from your system.
