Firebird, IBM DB2, MySQL, PSQL, PostgreSQL, SAP Sybase, SQLite, and VistaDB, just to name a few. Regarding the document support, you can load any DOC or DOCX Word file, as well as more basic formats such as TXT and RTF. Worth checking out just for the plethora of available charts The application boasts a fairly clear-cut and modern-looking user interface with a compact ribbon-toolbar being the main element that catches the eye. All the word processing and report editing features are on tap, but since this is a reporting app, after all, the chart-related features are probably the most worthy of your attention. That said, once you start fiddling about with the app, you are bound to discover that it comes with support for a vast number of chart types. You can create anything from the typical radar and polar charts, all the way up to 2D or 3D columns, cylinder and pyramid charts, 2D or 3D line, 2D or 3D pie, 3D Bar, scatter, bubble, and Gantt charts. Basic collaboration features and a few report themes Other than that, we should also point out that Snap Cola makes it possible for multiple users to edit the same files. Evidently, the changes will be immediately reflected on the screens of all respective users, but you shouldn't set your expectations too high since the system is a bit "crude." Last but not least, we will also like to mention the fact that the app offers you to a quick way to customize your reports thanks to 7 built-in themes, easily accessible from the Appearance tab.
