keymacro adds a macro to the system keyboard allowing you to use any key to execute any script. It is actually a macro recorder. keymacro is not really a helper like other macros recorders, like macro recorder for outlook. It records what you type and what you press on your keyboard. In this case, we record the combination of key strokes and click that is made on the screen. The keystrokes will be marked in red on your macro. Besides that, you can click on the shortcut "Record Macro" and the macro will be recorded. keymacro is used to automate repetitive tasks. It is for example used to automate sending an email from your email client. After recording, you can then select the action you want the macro to perform and then the macro will be executed. It is really a macro recorder. Furthermore, keymacro can automatically copy/paste keystrokes/buttons into your email. Please read the documentation and the video tutorial if you want to master keymacro. Disclaimer: KeyMacro, and the author, is not responsible for any harm or loss of data or computer system that might have been caused by using this software. If your computer crashes or you have any difficulties you are on your own. Keymacro can copy/paste keystrokes from your email into any program/application. There is no way of making sure that everything is copied/pasted the way you want it. keymacro does not work for all applications, it might not work with your applications. KeyMacro is not for automated online banking. KeyMacro is not for online shopping. There is a money back guarantee, you have 30 days to try keymacro. If you have any question do not hesitate to contact the author. As a Microsoft Outlook user, one of the problems you will face at some point is the inability to open a Word or a PDF attachment in the message. Although this problem could occur for a number of reasons, I will address some of the most common ones, and how you can solve it. The most common problem that causes this is the way Microsoft Outlook stores its attachments. Unlike other email clients, Outlook will put all the attachments in the Inbox folder. This might become a problem if you want to re-send a message or if you want to save some attachment for later. The problem can be solved if you save the attachments in a folder 1d6a3396d6
