qSnap is an extension for Google Chrome that allows you to save web pages as images or upload images to social media sites. SEO Your Way – Long Tail Keywords Are you trying to figure out which keywords are the most profitable? The answer depends a lot on your website. How many words do you want to have in the title?

Do you have a description? Do you have a page of content on each of your keywords? Do you have a page for each of your keywords that has an exact match URL? Do you have good navigation? Are your pages readable? How many other pages do you have on the site? If you aren't sure, this search by keywords page will help you with the search: Will give you a list of pages that contain your keywords Will give you a list of keywords Will take you to a Google page that lets you search for pages that contain your keywords However, if you are unsure what keywords should be included, you can use the Google Adwords Keyword Tool. The results of the Google Adwords tool are a list of the most searched keywords. (And yes, sometimes you can use these as long as you're not using trademarked brands) Here are some SEO tip number 8 things you should do: Keywords should be on the top part of the page title The keyword should be one of the first words on the page The page needs to be optimized for SEO so there is no need to use bold, italics or other tags on the page Use short, simple and direct sentences Avoid using HTML or other tags that make the page difficult to read Avoid using too many words in the headline (don't use all caps or subheadings) Long titles can be used but they are not as effective as short titles Don't use common words in the first paragraph Use keywords in your meta description Use links to the other pages on your site Links to your site or a video will not help your site. Google wants to rank these pages so links should be listed as external backlinks Use images that add value to the page Google wants the visitors to stay on the page for a long time (five minutes is optimal) Don't be spammy 7 Key Strategies for SEO Copywriting that Produce Superior Content When most people think of SEO, they automatically think of web writing. For those who aren't familiar, web writing
