Some of them have more than 12 because it was when they split up with other companies and now they are gone and not even on a domain. To do this they could cut off more companies but that would cause chaos. It'll be interesting to see how it all pans out. If they do well it will show people that you can build an audience and make some money, if they do poorly it will just be more proof that if you are in the top 10 of Google (usually) you have a shot at being successful with this. I really hope the OP buys a domain and gets around to creating a site. Sounds like he has a good idea and I'd love to see him make a little money from it. A couple of years ago I started a site but I never launched it (so to speak). It would be cool to see someone that already has a site get around to launching it. For a list of recent domain name sales check this: My guess is that the list isn't perfect. Some of the sales might have been for two names, one having been combined to make a new one. It also doesn't include domains that were auctioned or for sale with the final price not yet known.Kiki is a mexican beauty and she loves to have fun with her friends.
