‘Catch-22’ Star Joshua Jackson Dies At 34 It was in June 2015 when Joshua Jackson, 32, confirmed that he had been diagnosed with non-Hodgkin lymphoma, but sadly it was revealed that it had spread to the lymph nodes and other areas. In December that year, the actor decided to undergo chemo and radiation treatments, in order to fight the disease, but he then decided to quit after making some big decisions about his life. He told Us Weekly “there are no easy choices in this business, it is too hard. I still have no idea how I will do (returning to TV), but after a while it will come down to ‘I want to be in it.’ “I will be very lucky to be able to return to the show, but I don’t know if I will ever be able to work again, because of the chemo. I have no idea.” Jackson went on to open up about why he had to leave the show, and he cited the fact that he was suffering, having undergone the chemo treatments which had left him feeling low. He said “I will be in remission for about two years and then I will have a mini-recovery. “I am ready to live. I’ve never been the guy who says ‘I’m ready to go’ so I am. I’m ready to be healthy and to have a family and to have this whole thing be behind me. I want to have a vacation and a wonderful experience.” Jackson made his final appearance in season five episode entitled ‘Toby’s Kind of a Dork,’ where Toby visits with a priest to talk about forgiveness. Jackson plays the role of Fr Jack Tobias, a priest who helps Toby and his children move on with their lives. Jackson’s co-star of the show
