The MBB MMC 105 is a single-seat, jet-powered interceptor aircraft that entered operational service in 1962. The MMC 105 is to be supplied in kit form by Matchbox and Fábrica de Aviones in Argentina as the Aica MB.105 and the Avicopter Avico 105. The aircraft was designed and built in Brazil. This particular kit was just acquired from the Canadian publisher, Dako. This kit has never been completed but may still be able to be built and flown. Related Posts Comments This is my first post at this excellent Web site and I am glad to be visiting and participating in the discussions. I have been searching online for something like this. I live in the Miami, Florida area where there are several aviation museums, and am a frequent visitor to the National Museum of the U.S. Air Force in Dayton, Ohio. As I have said, I am not familiar with aircraft kits, and so cannot give you any advice, but I can tell you that from my short experience with what I have seen in the museums, this is one of the more attractive aircraft kits I have seen, and will be looking into purchasing it. In particular, the subject of the aircraft bears a striking resemblance to the North American F-100 Super Sabre. This was my first post and I am glad to find such a nice, interesting and informative place. About 30 years ago I built a MMC 105 and flew it a few times. Loved it. I tried to find and locate one on the internet but didn't have much luck. I found a well preserved 105 in OK back in the 90's and loved it to pieces. When I saw that Matchbox was making one I bought it and sold it when I lost my job. I always regretted it but thought it would be cool
