This is the set for those who don't know about fractal or they use regular pattern without the knowledge of fractals. The fractal also can be exported in pdf and EPS (vectorial drawings). Fractal image is a pattern that resembles a physical form such as a mountain or a tree. Any form that looks similar to a natural object such as a mountain or a tree could be considered a fractal. Everything from lines, dots, polygons, and fractals itself is a form of fractal. Contrary to the usual thinking of fractals as abstract patterns, fractals are natural objects; they are almost always drawn with physicality in mind. The term fractal can be used to describe any very complex and irregular pattern, shape, or structure. It generally means "fractal", however in English the term generally is applied only to patterns that do not recur in a space more than twice the size of the object itself, while recurrence is the main characteristic of the term. This set of fractals was modified with special morphing matrix, look here for more information! What is fractal: Fractal is a type of recurring patterns that doesn't appear anywhere else. It is essentially the mathematical description of a form that has a similar structure at many different scales. It is one of the most interesting and impressive phenomena in nature. Fractals can be created from all kinds of mathematical functions. The very similar patterns of trees, mountains, coastlines, clouds, and the heart of a snowflake are all forms of fractals. As night falls on a modern city, the lights come on, and celebrities from television, movies, and music shows appear on the most famous television stage in America, offering their sage advice and signing an all-time classic. "America needs us, okay?" Bill Gates appeared first. The sketch, which included cameos by Julianne Moore and Jennifer Lawrence, was a "Saturday Night Live" teaser of a possible segment on the NBC show with celebrities called "Bobby" for its upcoming season. "This season, our 'Bobby' could be about anything from Donald Trump to Black Panther," showrunner Lorne Michaels said in a statement. "Let us know what you'd like to see us write about on the show." Replacing the four celebrity players of the series' early days is a team of two new team members: "Celebrity Anonymous." "The celebrity game isn't what it used to be. Used to be they'd have to answer questions. Now they just throw stuff at us and then we go home," a fellow anonymous celebrity said during the show. "I'll take the money when somebody comes up to me and says, 'Oh, I love you,'" said Peter Dinklage, who plays the Night King in the HBO hit "Game of Thrones."
