Description: Category:Diagnostic softwareBurchard von Butzheim Burchard von Butzheim (died 25 May 1127) was a medieval Bishop of Metz. Burchard was born into a noble family from the village of Butzheim in Alsace (as it was then called).

According to his biography, he became abbot of the monastery of Our Lady in Hochwächter. He was elected to the bishopric of Metz around 1095, and was consecrated on 17 May 1096, by Raymond, archbishop of Trier. During his episcopate, he supported Pope Paschal II against Emperor Henry V and his son Conrad. He also supported the building of the Cathedral of Metz. Burchard and the Holy Roman Emperor Conrad II feuded over the relationship between the King of the Romans and the Holy Roman Emperor. Conrad II had a dream, in which an angel told him to attack the Bishop of Metz. The emperor sent his troops in several places to occupy and besiege the town of Butzheim. When the emperor's troops took the town of Butzheim by force, the people of Butzheim rebelled against the Archbishop of Trier. The emperor ordered a massacre of the inhabitants of the town. The Archbishop of Trier, on the emperor's orders, excommunicated and imprisoned Burchard for thirty-three days. Burchard died in exile in 1127 and was buried in the monastery of Our Lady in Hochwächter. References External links
