Annual, International IDP Award!
The Third Phase of Homeland Security's P3 Grants program seeks to award institutions that demonstrate a maturity and capacity to assess the current vulnerabilities to terrorist attacks and overcome them. To be eligible to apply for P3 funding, institutions must have an academic/research program recognized in the field of homeland security and security risk assessment (SRM). Institutions must also demonstrate both operational and conceptual capabilities in the area of strategic planning, risk assessment, and management of threat-related issues. An additional component of the award will require the institution to demonstrate a commitment to statewide/national outreach efforts. The IDP Award is set aside for institutions that have demonstrated the depth and breadth of their research. The criteria for the award are as follows: The IDP Award is set aside for institutions that have demonstrated the depth and breadth of their research. A research focus on the development of tools and methods for the research, assessment, and identification of risk and vulnerability in the homeland security domain Outreach efforts that have a broad impact on the field of homeland security The supporting evidence of faculty expertise and collegiality among award recipients An institutional capacity for outreach and community and stakeholder involvement The institutions that
