If you are looking to quickly capture video, or capture a particular section of a larger clip, and need to do it in bulk or on a schedule, VidSplitter is the application for you! It captures video from all your video sources, including webcams, DV cameras, VHS and VCRs, and automatically splits it into multiple files. The simple-to-use interface allows you to manually capture video segments, or you can set the application to automatically capture video whenever the computer is on. With VidSplitter you can capture between 25-3000 video clips at once. VidSplitter features: Manually capture video segments Capture video segments from any video source including webcams, DV cameras, VHS and VCRs. Automatically capture video segments Automatically capture video segments at any time and record them to a specific location. Automatically capture video segments based on a schedule Automatically capture video segments based on a schedule at any time, with flexible time windows. Capture video segments whenever the computer is on or off Capture video segments whenever the computer is on or off with very flexible time windows. Segment capture from any video source Capture video segments from any video source including webcams, DV cameras, VHS and VCRs. Convert and quality control your video segments Convert video segments from one video format to another without missing frames. The first half of the application allows you to search for all the video sources and set the filters you want to apply to them. You can specify with precision how many segments you want to capture for each source, in the format you have selected. Once the search process is completed, you will have a list of video sources and the number of segments they will capture. Select the video source you want to capture a particular segment from and you will be given the chance to set the start and end time. The end time is actually the end of the segment captured, so the length of the video file will be specified automatically. If you want to capture more segments, simply click the 'Add new Video Source' button and enter another video source. Once you have set the start and end time of the video segment, click 'Start Capturing'. The last step is selecting the directory you want to save the video file to. Now, you are ready to use VidSplitter! Please be aware that capturing video
