Hope you found this Swiff Point Player review helpful.New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio announced Wednesday he was endorsing Hillary Clinton for president, saying he believed he could "influence the direction of change" in a future Clinton administration. "Hillary Clinton has championed issues of gender equality and racial justice, and has been a passionate advocate for families and children for the last twenty-five years," de Blasio said in a statement. "Her vision and plans are what I believe we need to ensure that all people have a place to belong and a place to thrive." The support was seen as crucial for Clinton, who was reportedly under pressure from some of her supporters to make a more forceful move on LGBT issues after a more moderate course at this month's Democratic National Convention. In a statement following de Blasio's announcement, she released a statement that thanked him. "For as long as I can remember, Bill de Blasio has been an advocate for working families and working families deserve the opportunity for the promise of America," Clinton said in a statement. De Blasio said he believes Hillary Clinton "truly understands that if we are going to rebuild our economy and strengthen our families, we have to truly invest in our people." He also said his family decided to take action after viewing her speech at the
