1. Begin by opening the image that you wish to manipulate, as shown in Figure 11-16 . Notice the tiled image window displaying the image you opened. 2. Choose the Filters | Blend button at the top of the Photoshop window. The Photoshop dialog box opens, as shown in Figure 11-17. 3. From the Effects category on the left side of the dialog box, choose Shadows. Photoshop opens a submenu listing the Shadow effects, as shown in Figure 11-18. FIGURE 11-16 FIGURE 11-17 FIGURE 11-18 4. Select the Brighter Tones option, as shown in Figure 11-19 . When you select this option, the color pixels are reshaped with a rounded, more cartoony look. Notice the text preview in the bottom-right corner of the dialog box, indicating that this option has been selected. The text is smaller than the normal "no effects" option, indicating that the Shadows effect has been enabled. 5. Choose the option that you want to apply to the color pixels by clicking the Preview button. If you choose the Brighter Tones option, the color pixels are affected. If you select one of the other options, the text changes to reflect the option that you selected. 6. After a short time, Photoshop displays the image with the Shadows applied. You can use the same process to apply multiple Shadows effects simultaneously. MENU SYSTEM The way that you use layers in Photoshop gives you greater control of your images. This functionality allows you to easily create a copy of a layer, move it around the canvas, and even combine it with other layers using the Layer menu. When you use layers, they essentially replace the standard method of editing an image by starting with a single background layer and adding other layers over that, one on top of another, to create the desired image. Each layer is made up of independent color channels, such as red, blue, and yellow. By creating layers that contain color, you can save space on your images, which gives you larger file sizes. You can use the layer mode tools to merge layers,

's damage and cost of repair to the beach, and any other damage which is not readily apparent. At the motion hearing, the City's counsel asked the trial court to order the demolition of the Wall, and to assess costs, including attorney's fees, against the Wall.[3] The City's counsel stated that the Wall was a "serious defect in the sidewalk," which causes "immediate danger." The trial court granted the City's motion and ordered the Wall to be demolished. *435 On appeal, Appellants contend that the City failed to prove that the Wall was a dangerous nuisance or that the Wall caused "immediate danger." In support of this argument, Appellants assert that the evidence shows only that the Wall may be a "dangerous defect" or a "dangerous condition," and not a dangerous nuisance. Appellants further argue that the City cannot seek to have the Wall demolished because the Wall was originally placed on private property. The law is clear that a governmental agency, such as the City, has the power to demolish a dangerous nuisance. See Code § 22.1-318 (defining "nuisance" as a "thing in the nature of a private or public injury"); Code § 22.1-309 (regarding "nuisance abatement"); Code § 22.1-323 (authorizing the county or municipal governing body to institute "an action or proceeding" for the purpose of abating a nuisance). Pursuant to Code § 22.1-318, a "dangerous nuisance" may be defined as a "nuisance... which is dangerous to life or limb, and which may be avoided only by the employment of special care and precaution...." Further, "[a] public or private corporation, utility or other person, his servants or employees, owning, operating, or conducting a public utility or street railway in the state, or a public corporation, public agency or public utility having authority or responsibility for such operation, street railway or facility, shall be liable for any personal injury or damage sustained by any person as a result of the dangerous and defective condition of any... facility of the corporation... involved...." Code § 54.1-3934(19) (providing liability for injuries caused by "[d]efective or unsafe conditions of sidewalks, curbs, or streets... which endanger... public safety"). Here, the evidence demonstrates that the Wall is a "dangerous nuisance," and "a dangerous defect," as defined by the statute.

Critical assessment of COSMOS+/MALTA in combination with the NASA TL1+ programme for individual assignment. The $100 million COSMOS+ mission, due to be launched this year, will be one of the largest astrophysics missions carried out to date. It will use a new telescope and a novel optical design, and at the focus of this project lies a new distributed computing concept to improve the scientific output from individual telescopes through collaboration. The COSMOS+ concept has been described by the scientific community as innovative, challenging, complex, and data intensive. It seeks to address some of the top unanswered questions in astronomy using the most sophisticated instrument. The people with the most relevant skills, in place at the time of the decision to select the COSMOS+ mission as a participant, will have the chance to develop new innovative technologies and science, and to advance the mission and the astrophysical research. In response to the decision to proceed with the selection of NASA's Technology Demonstration Missions and Small Explorer (NASA TL1 +) programme, the consortium COSMOS+/MALTA has been formed. It consists of 15 Member Institutions, representing many different countries and fields of expertise (e.g. astrophysics, cosmology, instrumentation, software, hardware, education, and so on) and employs over 2000 personnel. To prepare for the upcoming selection round, NASA commissioned a comprehensive study and assessment of COSMOS+, including the outcome of the previous TL1+ decision. This report presents the conclusions reached by the scientific community of the participating institutes.The record for the best-selling car in India has been broken again, as the all-new Scorpio became the country's fastest growing commercial vehicle brand in terms of growth last month. The all-new Scorpio from Tata Motors has again taken the top position as the best-selling car in India over a period of 24 months. This was announced on Monday at the Driven2Green Forum 2018 held in Guwahati, as per a report by Mint. Earlier, it was M&M's Santro, and now it is the Tata Motors-developed Scorpio.
