Bank, where it is estimated at least 17 have died. The Palestinian Fire and Rescue Authority spokesman, Fahd al-Shwaiki, said on Monday that the number of those who died in the fire “is still rising.” About 3,000 members of the center, a grass-roofed building in an area heavily populated by impoverished Palestinians, were taking refuge from the fire in the nearby Al-Ahliyya school. Fires are a common occurrence in Palestine, as the Palestinian Authority (PA) is not in full control of the territory. In a statement on Facebook on Sunday, UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres called for the protection of Palestinian institutions and appealed for “respectful access for humanitarian actors to the area,” according to official Palestinian News Agency (Wafa). Guterres also called for an investigation into the “previously unexplained” deaths, adding that he would “monitor the situation closely.” On Monday, a spokeswoman for the Israeli military said that none of its forces “have been involved in the rescue operation.” “The incident in the Al-Ahliyya school was exclusively being handled by the relevant Palestinian security forces,” she added. The fire broke out on Sunday afternoon, on a day when the holy month of Ramadan was underway. Witnesses told AFP news agency that some people had tried to escape the building but could not make it out safely. Ramadan is the holiest month of the year for Muslims, during which they abstain from eating, drinking, smoking and having sex from dawn until sunset. Hours after the fire broke out, Palestinians attacked Israeli border police stationed in the area, according to Reuters. The Israeli police spokesman said 13 Palestinians had been arrested, and local sources said that the

Sept 18, 2019 · Arie I really love this episode where the guys were in the tower in the desert and it was really well shot and they acted in it really well.. It's just hilarious how he went on and on about how blown away he was of their storytelling abilities...that is the question that you guys are going to be asking me for the next two days.
