I have a set of files with a same name, but different data in it. I would like to create an bash script to automate the process. Assume we have a file.sh which has content: echo a=1 echo b=2 Now I would like to change the value of variable a to 3, and then execute the file.sh, it should print out: a=3 b=2 I want to use a macro expansion, in order to do that: %{ # I define a function call'macro_exp' echo '#Macro expansion is called' # I need to use a macro expansion to assign value to a variable # a=3 # # Both a and b will have new values echo a=$(somestuff) echo b=$
