IBM Security AppScan Enterprise v9.0.1.1 datem. 6.0.0.393.rar.Q: Can I retain username of facebook user? I have a php page that I am working on, that allows people to create their own facebook usernames, like so I wanted to be able to retain this username after the person has registered (I know that my current facebook profile allows for others to do this, but I would like to be able to retain and display on my own site as well). I tried doing this through $facebook->api('/me/username'); but there is no way to know how to retain their username, other than prompting them to enter their name again. Is there anyway to do this, or do I need to allow them to enter their username and then tell them to go to their profile and type in the new username (I would like this to be integrated into my login script, which gets the facebook cookie, and then lets the person log in with their facebook account). Thanks for any help. A: No, there is no way to do that. You can try this, which might work: when they login with facebook, save the facebook id returned by facebook to the database. Then, when they post, set the facebook_id to the facebook_id they want to appear to the users who post the data. This is not a good idea for many reasons. Voluntary vs. involuntary sterilization. The prohibition against involuntary sterilization of certain vulnerable groups, such as women with intellectual disabilities and poverty, shows that it is possible to establish criteria for the acceptability of sterilization without making it compulsory. Clearly, however, there are historical and social contexts that give rise to the need to impose or actually to impose, many voluntary methods of infertility control. In this paper, it is argued that the consent of subjects and the

To evaluate the effect of pumice and Biostar pulp occluding agent on enamel acid resistance after acid erosion. The buccal surfaces of 30 bovine enamel specimens were polished to standardized smoothness and a fluorescent phosphoric acid solution (1.0% acid, pH 2.0) was applied. The specimens were then stored in artificial saliva (pH 2.5) for 1, 7 and 14 days. For Biostar group (n=15), pumice was applied after acid exposure. For Bioscreen group (n=15), Biostar was applied before acid exposure. The specimens were then stored in artificial saliva for 7 days. In vitro acid resistance test was performed using a pH cycling model. The pH of all the specimens was raised for 5 min (pH 1.5), then was lowered to 5.0. The specimens were immersed in 5.0 pH solution for 1, 7 and 14 days. The loss of surface layer was evaluated at the end of each water holding period. No surface loss was found in Bioscreen group. In Biostar group, both the control and Biostar-applied surfaces
