This High-Intensity Football Match data includes Crouch, Stalking, sprint and accelerations; the ball’s angle and speed at the point of contact; and how long it takes to be completed. When the animation data is used for player models, the simulation engine can be intelligent enough to transition the player to a new angle (angle of attack) when attacking from the side or when changing speed or direction of movement. This new animation data drives a game that is faster, bolder, more unpredictable, and with more risk and reward, further increasing the sense of realism on and off the pitch. This enhanced fidelity allows players to be made less predictable and more unpredictable, as the AI makes better choices and reads opposition movements, and the camera also gets closer to the action. The result of this is fast, high intensity, high emotion football. It also allows players to get into every situation quicker and react quicker. Players now can dodge opponents with a clever tackle, block another player from heading the ball, run with the ball forward to take on an opponent one-on-one, make advanced runs into the oppositions half, or take players off the ball with a slide tackle, a backheel or a foot trap. In addition to the immersion-enhancing features above, FIFA 22 offers the most refined and detailed commentary of any edition of the game. Commentary is among the most well known and beloved feature of the FIFA series and it is used to deliver an authentic and exciting football experience to players and fans of the sport. For FIFA 22, this includes an array of new features, including language options for 32 languages, a commentary team that consists of new and returning members, including first time commentary team member, renowned play-by-play commentator Steve McManaman. Additionally, FIFA 22 provides full English, Spanish, Italian, German and Brazilian commentary. In order to enhance the level of connectivity between players and the media, players will be able to select a single-language commentary when starting a match. This enables fans to select their favorite language and experience enhanced immersion, competition, and communication amongst their team and the game. "We've leveraged the most advanced AI in the world to craft the most authentic football experience," said David Rutter, Executive Producer at EA Canada. "With a brand new animation system and hyper-motion technology, players can now move as if they're actually
